- Expertise with Web pack, gulp, similar frontend build tools (npm)
- Proficient in unit testing tools e.g. JEST or similar tools
- Proficient in either Sass, LESS, TailwindCSS, Bootstrap, Flexbox, or similar tools
- Strong understanding of REST APIs
- Familiarity with Docker is appreciated
- Familiar with SQL works (Bonus: if you understand Postgre)
- Familiar with UX/UI principles (Bonus: if you are familiar with Figma)

Responsibilities

- Our initial person on the frontend development
- Define the technology stack / tools to be used in the frontend
- Suggest projects that will improve the product or code base
- Write scalable, maintainable, reusable, and well-tested software that adheres to best practices
- Make technical time estimation on future software deliveries
- Document solutions with clear and concise explanations
- Collaborate with Product Owners, Growth Hacker, UX / Product Designer, and report to our CTO Ole Rossing

About you

- You prefer to work in a small team and start something new.
- You value working autonomously and love taking responsibility.
- You are passionate about new technologies and eager to suggest new development frameworks and tools to use.
- Bonus: You have an interest in investing and would like to learn about the investment industry.

Perks

-  Free lunch and coffee at the office
-  Flexible working hours
-  Near public transit
-  Office pool tournament every Friday (and the bragging rights if you win)
-  Competitive salary
